Awesome song by Metahuman. Upper 16, this has triplets in the "breaks" which makes the chart really dense. Patterning is tough (Stripe style), and unforgiving, but the music is so hype it compensates. Very slightly different from the version in Stamina Showcase.

One of the shortest songs in the pack, also almost the easiest. Patterns are getting harder as the chart progresses because the orchestra slowly comes in as well. Is most likely a 14+, but it kicked my ass pretty hard for a 14. Best track of the album, sped up from 160.

Longest 180BPM stream in a non marathon song yet. It has only one run, but patterning is way more forgiving than in Only Love, it gets really easy after measure 280 when the voice comes in. I have no idea what the exact rating of this is. I love Psykovsky.

There's a truckload of small spirals and loochies, this is probably too hard patterned for what it is. Breaks are well distributed in the song so you can recover without problem. The song gets pretty repetitive without being boring, and the chart should proceed accordingly.

Lower 17. The 24 break is actually pretty dense for 16 measures (~10 notes per measure). I zoned out when playing this file, patterns are pretty easy, and repetitive like the music is, but with little twists at times that keeps it interesting. Current Value is a REALLY GOOD dnb artist, check him out.

Borderline 17. French modern rap gods Casseurs Flowters came up with a song about our lazy generation. Patterning is pretty easy for a StripE chart, runs are very close together making the 25 measure break really welcomed. Play loud for additionnal frenchness.

TOA are my favorite Industrial Hardcore artists, and this is one of their most brutal songs. I tried not to overstep everything. Patterning in this may be uncomfortable for lots of people, this is HARD. Song is also kind of repetitive, so I would be suprised to see anyone try that song.

One the two most famous files of the pack. Strange chart with a LOT of broken stream, but with no real break. Patterning is also pretty hard, but not too unfair. Was used for FCS2.5 qualifier, sped up from 173, this is now an upper 16. The ending makes it pretty hard.

Same than the hard chart except than 14 measures of the solo are 16th instead of 8th. While this doesn't change many things in the breakdown, it cuts the only long break of the song, making it way harder. Also still has unforgiving patterns.

Scariest song here, people actually fear this. Ridiculous first run (longer than the longest cranked pastry song), almost no break, AND UNNECESSARY 24THS. Patterns are HARDCORE until measure (MAX) 300 where it gets easier. Song is also top tier, sped up from 135 (wtf).

Original release in Parole Violation. This is a very good song, at least a very good instrumental because I am having trouble understanding what Oliver is trying to tell me. This is all 24ths so it is basically 102@220, patterning is medium/hard, but since its 220, this may be pretty hard.

Re-release from Stamina Showcase. Anchor-ish as fck, it really gets going at the 2 minutes mark with a 144* with hard patterns. I would have liked to be able to change it, but people already played this one a ton so I didnt change anything in the end. One of my fav dnb tracks ever.

Re-release from Omelette Du Fromage. This was kinda awkwardly stepped and did not do justice to the song, so I did it again. Is now more boxy and has no towers because they were uncomfy at this speed. This has proven to be tough for a 16 as a 80 unbroken is no joke.

Re-released from Stamina Showcase. "a stamina chart usually gets its identity on how the breaks are stepped, good thing there is none in this chart and still it has character" -I.Pyles. 2 Ian breaks, thats all you get. Patterning is easy.

Loved this song on the first listening, it really is a banger. Really relentless file, patterns alternate between kinda easy and really hard (second half is way hard). The few breaks are dense (12th, 24th, jumps) and doesn't let you really recover. Also one of the highest density of the whole pack.

A very underrated Sharpnel file. I remastered it because it is an old song not really well mastered. Upper 17, this has relentless patterns, no real breaks, and goes fast (wew). Has some tiny bits from the old Condortalon file from v2.

The easiest of my files. Plenty of breaks to recover, but don't slack off, the end is pretty rough. The break after the second refrain is a little technical with doublesteps and jumps. You need to watch Your Name if it's not done yet.

Schranz remix for a B&B song, hell yeah. Song structure here is kinda weird, which makes writing streams to it more difficult. I left out voluntarily some parts where I could have streamed all the way through. Patterning is boxy, very easy for the most part. I really dig this chart.

Damn, this took a VERY long time to make. >15 mixtapes versions, last 15mn changed 2 weeks before schedule, 2 months stepping time total. This is one of my best works yet musically speaking, and the chart was really enjoyable first time I played it ! It is REALLY borderline for an 18. There is a lot of breaks, but the runs do add up with some pretty difficult sections with a 260* in section 3, a 305* in the last part. Breaks are pretty comfy with a lot of space to get some drinks in.

Patterning is medium-easy for the most part, Into Dust has the hardest patterns of all this, and it only lasts for a minute or so ! I did put a lot of effort trying to vary patterning, Transmission has a run with loads of boxes for instance, when I usually place very few.

Thanks to RGTM for the banner, thanks to Ian, Chino & Mr Honk for the nice feedback on this !

The boss song.

This is a pretty old mix (from early 2016), that StripE & me decided to step a year ago. We ditched this as we had both more interesting projects to finish at this time. But a month ago, we had that crazy idea of putting it together one and for all. Which we finally did.

Industrial Hardcore/Crossbreed are not that well represented in ITG, and for a good reason : it is not that pleasant. Its rough, its dark, its fast, its noisy. But hey, ITG players are now eating Dark Psytrance for breakfast... So why not stepping that for a change ? And in the end, the beginning is not really hyping me that much, but the second half is killer. So mission accomplished ? YES.

The Expert has a lot of broken streams, but they do add up. The easy is mostly unbroken, which is harsh ! Both feature a pretty hard 32*@240 at the end, which was faster before I slowed down the song :^)

Also, it goes from 190 to 200 to 210 to 215 to 220 to 240BPM so get ready for those. This is pretty intimidating.

Thanks Ryan for the banner & StripE for his immense help on this.

This is one of the first full-length Trance Marathon. It only took 2 mixtapes versions to make it sound good. Transitions here are very long so there are bridges between song that last for almost a minute, that's what makes trance so great :) ! Mixtape itself is REALLY getting going after Remember December, I usually go full fist-pump mode just after On a Good Day, Lies Cost Nothing is imo the best track on this.

Credits to Fraxtil who did both Big Sky & Focus Shift charts. I touched up Big Sky slightly during the vocals and Focus Shift at the end to make it easier.

Credits to RGTM for the awesome banner. TY Chino for the review :)

Patterning is hard for Victims, the end of Lies Cost Nothing, Picture Of Dorian & Focus Shift. Special mention to Picture Of Dorian that has the most difficult patterning that can be hard to deal with after 45mn of stream. The rest is pretty easy.

Longest runs :

Big Sky -> On A Good Day -> Lies Cost Nothing
 A 128 and then a 168, most intense part.

Focus Shift

A 144 to finish !

A good joke gone wrong.

As this was the first long song I did back in January, this might be less impressive than the other three, but still, it does exist. This is a 20 minutes Russian Hardbass mix from XS Project, made by Broncomeister (apparently ?). It has a great number of russian favorites, including the infamous Bochka Bass Kolbasser tune from THAT russian dudes party video.

Mix is pretty bad in itself : it drifts a lot, transitions are a bit sketchy, but this reflects the idea of this being a meme chart.

Patterning is hard throughout the whole song, and the chart gets harder as time goes by. This is still a very easy 15, and a good first step into the world of marathons.

There is also an easy chart with MOAR streams, MOAR unnecessary 24ths for a better slavic experience.

Banner was made by me this time !

Thanks for playing !
